

D.M.D.D. SDK

Privacy Policy

Last updated: January 23, 2023

Hi there! If you are here, you probably wanted to learn about D.M.D.D. privacy policy concerning the SDK that you agreed to activate as part of the application you are using.

FYI, full information regarding D.M.D.D. is on <https://dmdd.io>

Specifically, Frequently asked questions for users are on <https://dmdd.io/faq/> A link to this page appears on:

- The consent screen asking you if you want to opt-in to D.M.D.D.'s network
- The application developer's own terms of use and privacy policy
- On our own website

This page has two parts:

1. An overview of the privacy policy, written in simple English
2. The official, legal privacy policy

The overview is provided for information purposes only, for your convenience. The overview is a summary of the main points in the policy, but is not an exhaustive legal document. We encourage you to read the entire policy to better understand how you can update, manage, export and delete your information. In case of any conflicts between these two parts, the official legal privacy policy takes precedence.

1. D.M.D.D.'s SDK privacy in simple terms

Let's be very clear: We don't know any personal information about you, who you are, or what you do online.

- We don't know your name, your email, what web pages you visit, or what apps you use.
- We don't read identifiers that already exist on your device (for example:

Apple's IDFA)

- We don't leave any cookies or other identifiers on your device.
- We don't know or track what you do on a specific app, or across several apps.
- Since we don't have any data about you, we of course have nothing to share with 3rd parties.

In other words, to us all D.M.D.D.'s SDK users are anonymous and indistinguishable. We just don't need to know any of your personal information, and we don't track you in any way.

There is one thing we know, and that is your IP address. We respect all applicable data privacy regulations when it comes to it.

BTW, you know who else knows your IP address? Any website you visit, and any app you use – they all know your IP address too. Don't believe it? Try googling

“what is my IP address” for example, or check your Internet speed on www.speedtest.net or check your location on iplocation.net. Can you see your IP address come up on screen?

Even though we know your IP, we do not use it for D.M.D.D.'s ongoing business operations. In fact, the reason we collect it is to comply with GDPR (e.g. record the fact you gave your consent) and to comply with other legal requirements.

To summarize – search engines, social networks and advertising networks all need some sort of information about you in order to decide which ads to display to you. D.M.D.D.'s SDK is totally different. It does not display ads, does not collect any of your personal information, and does not track you in any way.

We hope this helps clarify what we know about you. Now, feel free to read the full policy:
